

Conversation #1

A: Hello. My brother just took a test.

B: Really? Did he copy the lessons in the class?

A: Well, he has seen some documentaries about World War II.

B: Wow, that's interesting. Did he finish his first year in university?

A: No, he didn't. He is taking the last four classes now.

B: Cool. My sister has just written her second book.

A: That's excellent! Is she publishing her book this year?

B: I don't think so. The editors were just fixing some mistakes on it.

Conversation #2

A: Hi. Are your parents taking the train to London tonight?

B: I think so. We have to organize a big party!

A: Great idea! Have your brothers ever prepared any shots?

B: No, they haven't. But some friends took a bartender course last month.

A: Well, they will bring the drinks to the party then!

B: Definitely! And Annie has made some delicious food for some parties before.

A: We are all set! Let's call them.

B: I don't think so. The editors were just fixing some mistakes on it.

Conversation #3

A: Hey there. Has Oscar put the files on the desk?

B: I don't really know. I saw Susan taking some papers to your office.

A: Yes, they were the contracts for the construction. But the president is asking those other papers.

B: I am going to call Oscar. Maybe he sent an email to our boss already.

A: Well, I am sure that he was playing some games in his computer in the morning

B: That's true. But Marie always gives a memo to him when she sees him playing.

A: Well, The CEO will ask for a report if we lost the papers.

Conversation #4

A: Good Morning! Did Marco receive my message last night?

B: I am sorry. Which message?

A: The message were I inform him that his aunt is asking for the umbrella.

B: I think his mother was taking the umbrella to her.

A: Well, I will check if his aunt received the umbrella already.

B: Has Marco bought a new car?

A: Not really. His girlfriend lent her car to him last day.

B: Ok, I thought he had won the lottery!

Conversation #5

A: Hello guys! Do you know where can my parents buy a good Stereo?

B: I think that Radio Shack has brought good stereos.

C: Well, actually they are too expensive. Have they seen the stereos in the Japanese store?

A: I don't think so. They were calling my uncle in the US last day.

C: That is a great option. They will find better options there.

B: That's true. But your parents expect the stereos to come this week.

A: Well, I think the Japanese store has called my attention more.

B: It is the best option! Your parents need the stereo for their anniversary.

C: I agree. I still remember that last year your family didn't make a party for them.